Connie Mays and Michelle Belknap recently received the “Outstanding Team Member Award” from Warren County Prosecutor David P. Fornshell. The award is based on nominations from members of the Warren County Prosecutor’s Office, and is given to the employee who exhibits outstanding commitment to their colleagues while carrying out the ideals and principles of the Prosecutor’s Office. Connie has served as the Office Manager since June 2004. Michelle has served as an assistant prosecutor in the Child Support Enforcement Agency since December 2013.

Connie’s co-workers included the following comments about her in their nominations:

“Connie is loyal, hard-working, and continues to keep this office moving in a forward direction, at all times. Connie sets a high standard for herself and she treats every day as an opportunity to meet and exceed that standard. You may never see her name in the news, but for every accomplishment that is made, or every case that is won, Connie has had a hand in that victory. Through the years, I have watched Connie give tirelessly of herself making sure that everyone has what they need to do their jobs and take care of their families. If it needs done, Connie will do it. In short, I believe that Connie is the grease that keeps the machine that is the Prosecutor’s Office humming along.”

Michelle’s co-workers included the following comments in their nominations of her:

“Michelle is an intelligent and reliable resource for our entire division. She consistently goes the extra mile to further the goals of our office, never hesitating to take on a new project or additional task, and produces high quality work that the other CSEA attorneys can use confidently. Michelle always has a smile on her face and a good attitude. She’s always willing to help you out in any way she can. She accepts new responsibilities without hesitation and shows initiative in that she is always looking for ways to improve upon what’s always been done. In short, Michelle goes the extra mile for not only those around her but in being an outstanding representative of this office.”
